

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

November 1, 2006

For additional information:

Heidi Pearson

(312) 217-3313

heidippr7@aol.com

www.audiosnacks.com

AudioSnacks.com Packs Global Treats for Travelers

---

A Digital Catalogue of Virtual Audio Tours

---

CHICAGO-- No more big tour groups, no more following the lady with the umbrella, and no more tipping! Audiosnacks.com is satisfying the appetites of travelers all over the world. Dedicated to serve as the perfect travel “must-have” the recently launched site, is an online community where visitors can find, purchase, download and listen to unique audio tours that people have created to share the best of their environments.

Audiosnacks.com is considered to be one of the newest adaptations to the trend of podcasting and works the same way as downloading radio shows, video and music to an MP3 player or an iPod. Specifically, audio museum and tour guides are an outgrowth of a recent trend called “sound seeing”, whereby people provide recorded narrations of their travels. Primarily, the site was developed to serve as a portal for the exchange of non-typical travel and destination related information that hasn't been available until now.

“Like many I love to travel but, I don't love looking like a tourist or being overly committed to a rigid tour group schedule, so the idea for AudioSnacks came to me while traveling the world last year somewhere between the ancient ruins of Machu Pichu and the beautiful beaches of Bali,” explains Michael Salvatore, Founder and President of Audiosnacks.com.

One of the most important features of the site, is that membership is free. Once signed up, visitors can begin finding the perfect audio tour(s), and start downloading right away. Or members can contribute their own tour for sale. To insure tour sharing success, visitors can participate in a “tour training” via the Training page, and start successfully uploading tours to the largest audio tour community in the world and make some cash along the way.

To learn more, join others and start your own tour or view the existing online catalogue, visit www.audiosnack.com for additional information.